Mr. Weisberg:

I was very moved by your confidence in Mr. Garrison after reading "Oswald In New Orleans". You seemed very convinced of his sincerity. I'm curious as to why you did such a 180. Was it because he didn't have a good enough case against Clay Shaw and continued anyway? Or was it that he really wasn't interested in solving the "Crime of the Century", only in getting headlines? Looking foward to reading "Post Mortem" and anything else you're working on. Wishing you and your wife continued good health.

Sincerely,

Andy Sekatnez
